ABOUT ME

My name is Nicolae. I am a simple, perseverant, and hardworking individual. Throughout my career, I have followed a path that did not define me, but recently, I chose the IT field, and I am firmly convinced that this is what I enjoy. I work at the largest company in Germany (Volkswagen), but despite this, I am ready for a career change. I have dreams and I am moving towards them. I hope the person reading this text will give me a chance. My motto is, "If opportunity doesn't knock, build a door."

COMMUNICATION AND INTERPERSONAL SKILLS

Active listening

Active listening is a communication skill that involves fully concentrating, understanding, responding to, and remembering what the speaker is saying. It goes beyond merely hearing words and involves engaging with the speaker to show genuine interest and empathy. This skill requires giving full attention to the speaker, providing feedback through verbal and non-verbal cues, asking clarifying questions, and reflecting on the speaker’s message. Active listening helps in building rapport, resolving conflicts, and ensuring effective communication and mutual understanding.

Technical Troubleshooting

Technical troubleshooting is the ability to diagnose and resolve technical issues related to hardware, software, or network systems. This skill involves systematically identifying the root causes of problems, using diagnostic tools and techniques, and applying solutions to restore functionality. It requires a strong understanding of IT systems, attention to detail, and problem-solving abilities. Effective technical troubleshooting minimizes downtime, enhances system performance, and ensures smooth operations by addressing and resolving technical challenges efficiently.

HOBBIES AND INTERESTS

Football

Football (soccer) is more than just a pastime for me; it’s a passion that has honed several skills transferable to the IT field. Through playing football, I have developed strong teamwork and leadership abilities, as well as the capacity to perform under pressure. The strategic thinking required on the field translates well to problem-solving in IT, where quick decision-making and effective communication are key. My experience with football has also instilled a strong sense of discipline and commitment, traits that drive my dedication to ensuring the reliability and efficiency of IT systems.
